Kirsty first appears in Hellraiser as the teenage da ughter of Larry Cotton (Andrew Robinson) and stepdaughter of his second wife &#1 27989; Julia Cotton (Clare Higgins). Kirsty moves with her parents to England t o the house of her uncle Frank Cotton (Sean &#127989; Chapman), who has disappe ared sometime ago, but refuses to live with her parents, instead opting to live in a place &#127989; of her own. When passing by her parents house one day, Kir sty sees Julia and a man enter the place &#127989; and, believing Julia to be c heating on her father, follows the two inside and up to the attic of the &#12798 9; house. It is there that Kirsty witnesses Julia attack the man and her uncle Frank, who is now a skinless &#127989; entity needing to feast on the blood of others for nourishment, begin to eat him. When the man tries to &#127989; escap e, Frank chases after him and discovers Kirsty, whom he tries to attack, before stopping when she grabs the nearby &#127989; Lemarchand&#39;s box. Realizing th e puzzle box has some significance to Frank, Kirsty tosses it out a window, dist racting him and &#127989; allowing her to escape outside where she, after picki ng up the box, collapses. Found and taken to a hospital, Kirsty &#127989; wakes up and, at first believing everything that has happened to be a dream, realizes she is wrong when a &#127989; doctor hands her the box. Toying with the puzzle box, Kirsty solves and inadvertently summons the sadomasochistic demons known a s &#127989; the Cenobites and their leader, Pinhead (Doug Bradley). Kirsty barg ains with the Cenobites, revealing to them that she knows where &#127989; the e scaped Frank is and offering them him instead of herself. After escaping from th e hospital (presumably with the assistance &#127989; of the Cenobites), she ret
